AHS Newscast

By Anne Hall

Dear Editor,

We had one big event last week and we have one this week. Our annual banquet was held on May 19 and we all very pleased with their outcome. Therefore there has been a great deal of work done on them this week, especially for us seniors. On Thursday the 26th the juniors are giving the annual junior - Senior Prom. We seniors are indeed looking forward to this event. As the junior Class has done so much work, we are sure the Prom will be wonderful.

Friday was Radio Forensic Day. Some of the duties were to narrate students were assigned to write their speeches a great deal. We were also represented by the E. C. A. officers who went to Lynchburg to attend a meeting.

Monday night the A. H. S. Home and Senior Class had a meeting in the school auditorium. Plans were made for the Commencement activities. We were to play softball the game was rained out. The softball game will be played on Tuesday instead.

Exams are to start Monday the 30th. Some of the seniors have already finished their exams. There is one more week of studying before school is out for the summer.

The Seniors have been practicing for their Class Night program which is to be held on May 31. We hope many people will be able to attend.

This concludes the news I have to write for this week. I'll be looking for more news from the next week. Same time.

'Til then,

Jane.

Officials Urge Caution Over Holiday Week-End

Richmond, Va., May 25 — As motorists prepared to flock to Virginia highways for the long and dangerous Memorial Day weekend, Col. C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police and Chairman of the Governor's Highway Safety Committee, echoed the national theme, "Slow Down and Live."

This national program has been endorsed by Governor Stanley as well as the governors of the other 47 states and will be in effect from this week-end through Labor Day and will have as its goal the reduction of speeding and other dangerous violations.

For statistical purposes, the week-end will run from 6:00 P. M. Friday, May 27 until midnight, Monday, May 30, to include 78 hours. Last year, with another 78 hour week-end, only six people were killed. In 1952, during still another 78 hour period, 18 died. In 1953, when the holiday ran only 54 hours, 16 deaths were noted.

"Every added mile per hour of speed," Col. Woodson said, "not only makes a crash more likely but makes it more severe if it does happen. Other violations kill also but analysis shows that speed is quite often a factor which contributes heavily even though it might not be listed as the primary cause."

Col. Woodson further warned motorists that they do not have to be at fault themselves to be killed and that this could happen very easily in the crowded, abnormal conditions of holiday traffic.

As another dangerous holiday condition, Col. Woodson stressed the tendency of motorists to attempt to cover too much distance in too little time and to drive when sleepy or exhausted. The drinking problem is also more acute during such periods, he added.

As a final word of 'advice, Col. Woodson stated emphatically that the motoring public could expect the same consistent, impartial and unrelenting enforcement that is the standard procedure of the State Police but asked for voluntary compliance with traffic laws rather than the unpleasantness of arrests

Richmond, Va., May 25 —' 'Will Memorial Day this year be a day of remembrance of the valor of all those who died in defense of our country, or one of shame, misery and useless bereavement, because of recklessness on the highways of Virginia and the nation,"? asks C. H. Lamb, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, as today he joined in an appeal, with other State Safety officials, to the motorists who will take the roads on the forthcoming holiday.

Recalling that in a span of 54 hours the death toll for 1953 Memorial Day in Virginia was 16 and for last Memorial Day that during a 78-hour period six died as the result of automobile accidents in the State, Mr. Lamb added: "that while the Division was not a law enforcing agency, that its files, after each long holiday, reflect not only deaths, but ofttimes staggering economic losses, revoked operating privileges and crippling injuries.

"The mandates of the courts pour in with every mail delivery leaving no recourse for the Division but to proceed against the offenders. Then there is another phase of the highway safety situation that the motoring public perhaps has never considered, that of the number of patient days in hospitals that often becomes unavailable to these dangerously ill and needing emergency treatments because of motorists' own recklessness or thoose of others.

"The national safety experts' admonition during the holiday season of "Slow Down and Live" means just that, and more—'Let Live.' It also means consideration of the rights of others, yielding the right of way, knowledge that speed as well as operating when conditions are unfavorable are the chief cause of highway fatalities.

"Memorial Day was never designed as a day upon which to decorate the graves of the killers on the highways or their victims."
